The motion to extend an invitation to every men's club in the city of Janesville to name a delegate for the annual council, was passed at the monthly meeting of the civic league held yesterday afternoon at the city hall assembly rooms. The suggestion was fathered by the fourteen members of the executive committee and the league aims to form this council for the purpose of free discussion of plans proposed or civic betterment and to give advice to the officers of the league for campaign work. Each of the men's clubs will receive, the following letter:

"The Janesville Civic League, having as its object the improvement of Janesville in sanitation, beauty and other conditions which will conduct to the health, morality, happiness and good fellowship of its people, and desiring the co-operation of all organizations interested in the betterment of the city, trust that your society appoint a representative to meet with the executive board of the league. DR. BEATON WRITING FROM WESTERN LAND

Tells of Journey Across the Rocky Mountains into the Beautiful Coast Country.

The following interesting letter from Dr. Daniel Beaton tells of his journey across the Rockies to the Pacific coast country where he is now located.

Oakland, California, Jan. 5, 1914.

My Dear Mr. Bliss:
The new year finds me settled at the Apostolic sign of St. Mark's Hotel with the roar of a great city rising from the streets. I came over the high Sierras yesterday, being Sunday, and though not in the usual celestial places on that day, was certainly in the high places among the snows and pines of those magnificent mountains. The great rains of the past week had made the roads difficult, but the deep snows and the roadbed in some places was washed out so that trains were delayed, but we got in on time except an hour or two.

At Sparks, just east of Reno, the air was balmy and gentle hints of spring were in the air. At Reno the old sign, "Twenty minutes for divorce" was taken down, and the month's residence for the same required. I did not stop over. I had some reminders of Janesville on the way.

In the first place, the "Haze-

One of the interesting exhibits at the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Show is a forty-pound bronze turkey caged in a steel wire cage. He is placed near the front of the auditorium and greets all spectators with spreading wings, gay and glorious. He is magnificently bird-like and is worth a few moments of anyone's time to look at. Other oddities of the show are to be seen in the cages of the Jacobin pigeons. If any lady possessed of what she may suppose to be a feathered colarette of unrivaled elegance, she need only gaze at these little birds to be undeceived. These proud birds with their smooth feathers rise higher than their crests, strut and cock about their cotes like miniature models of fashion. And if there be any fair lady in the feminine world who supposes that her head adornment cannot be outshone, she need only look into the cages of the White Black Pekins and cockerels as they raise their snowy white feathers perfectly formed, and naturally shaped, in gay defiance of any decoration that the hand and imagination of man can create. Then, too, one would do well to stop a few moments before the boxes of Fan Tailed pigeons, as they spread their gorgeous feathers, for your especial benefit.

Although the doors of the show opened yesterday, the entries were not nearly complete until this morning.

Great lines of the finest bred hens, pullets, cock and cockerels, stretch down the hall and from each cage the downy chicks seem to be calling you to come and see them next. All of the cages are gradually being filled up and it is beginning to look as though there would not be enough to accommodate all of the entries in spite of the fact that many new cages have been built this year. There is little doubt in the minds of those who have already seen the exhibits, but what this will be one of the greatest poultry shows in this section of the country this year. As a local proposition it is growing too fast to make sound comparisons with the shows of past years.

Mr. Mossberg has a rich baritone voice, powerful and well-controlled, and he used it to great effect in his climaxes and scored an especial triumph in those pieces which required unusual vocal effort. This was demonstrated in his first selection, "Prologue," from Pagliacci, and also in the number "Largo en Fletuctum" from Belisario de Seville. The group of five songs in lighter vein was given with fine expression and ensemble.

Promoter Tom McCarey has very generously offered a nice diamond belt for the middleweight championship, but it seems that the contestants for one season or another aren't going after it. Perhaps George Chip is already satisfied that he is the real champ and doesn't care to wrangle the matter further. George, after beating Frank Klaus, had "middleweight champ" printed all over his cards and assured his friends that he was it and that there need be no further bickering over the point. However, George must have long been unentanted and thence has long been unentanted and that when it comes right down to bronze tacks he is really not the honest-to-goodness champ. McCarey is anxious to settle the middleweight problem, and has made pleasant inducements, but Chip doesn't want to fight on the coast. Nor does Jack Dillon. The only available places for Dillon and Chip to get together are non-decision towns where nothing authentic would occur. It looks as though the middleweight bay leaves must remain idle for yet a while.

If we are to believe the recent announcement, the ball park of the Chicago Federal league team will be one of the finest and most expensive of the last decade. It will have a seating capacity of 20,000 and will be filled throughout in elegant fashion. There will be a single-deck grand stand that will seat some 18,000, pavilions at either end of the stand will seat 4,000 and the bleachers will hold at least 8,000. The plans are all complete and as work on the place will be started shortly, it is expected that it will be ready in time for the opening of the Federal league season.

Last night the Badgers wonched the Indiana five, 57 to 15 at Bloomington. Because of the fact that the Indiana team was composed of sophomores throughout accounts for their poor showing. Wisconsin played steady. Van Chent showing up very poorly. Harper secured 7 balls from guard.

BYRNE MAY MANAGE THE PITTSBURG FEEDS

The small floor at Freeport will not be used for the management at the Illinois school have obtained the use of a new Y. O. O. R. hall recently erected at that place with a floor playing space on it. The floor is slippery, as the hall is used for dancing as well as basketball. The locals were satisfied, however, to receive such satisfactory arrangements, and they at once accepted the game.

Freeport highs are not known in the local basketball world, and consequently the game is very uncertain.

The blue and white realize that a defeat is possible, and all expectations are going to be taken from the guarding standpoint in hopes of establishing the second win of the school year over the Freeporters, as well as making their nineteen straight wins into twenty.

Last Friday evening, the Sucker men whalloped the Lane Technical school 30 to 16. That looks all but encouraging to the local Freeporters, some heavy material, because seven of their football stars are on the five. The team is composed of Gihill and Hill, forwards; Hart, center; Bonn, (capt.) and Fisher, guards. Another fact that the locals remember, is that the Lane Tech bunch are champions of Chicago. A victory for the locals would mean a lot, while a defeat would do no harm.

The game with the Beloit College second was uncertain so Coach Curtis, anxious to secure a definite contest for this week, accepted the Freeport challenge at once. Several rooters are intending to follow up the five to the Illinois city Friday night. The squad are out nightly for their first practice this week. The team will be picked by Wednesday.

Bobby Byrne

Bobby Byrne, veteran Pittsburgh Pirate, stands a good chance of managing the Pittsburgh Federal leaguers next season. Chances now favor Bobby Byrne or Rhody Wallace, said Secretary W. T. McCullough of the club. While the applications of two or three other major league players are under advisement, it looks as if the directors of the club would decide on one of the two players mentioned. Byrne, because of his advantage in years, seems to be greatly favored by the directors.

DEATH AND TAXES.

It is an old saying that there's nothing so certain as death and taxes, and while we all live in hope that the advent of the former may be long delayed, the latter puts in its appearance with monotonous regularity.

Just now the taxpayers of the state are very much exercised over the unusual burden of taxation that the tax rolls unfold, and the farmers, especially, are complaining bitterly.

It is never a very gracious thing to say, "I told you so," but the state has finally arrived at the inevitable destination which ten years of progressive reform made certain and it is fortunate that the great farming constituency has been aroused by an object lesson sufficiently strong to make a lasting impression.

The extra assessments and the income tax have been saddled on the industrial and commercial interests, and as a result the business men have been made the goat, but when these resources were exhausted there was still a demand for money, and so the twenty million dollar state tax hits all kinds of property, and hits it hard.

If the taxes are high this year, it will be worth while to remember that they will be largely increased next year, and conditions will grow worse as time goes on, unless the people arise in their might and redeem the state.

This is more easily said than done because the nefarious primary law has accomplished its purpose by annihilating party organization, and to-day a minority of the voters nominate the men selected by the powers in control, while the majority stay at home and saw wood.

The last legislature was composed of this kind of men and they were selected by the czar, who is largely responsible for present conditions. This is not a fairy tale, but history so plainly written that he who runs may read.

There was a time when we used to get together as friends and neighbors and select men to represent us in convention. Then there was a common center where sentiment could crystallize in concerted action.

Today every man is an "independent" unit, and he is so blamed independent that he stays at home on primary election day, and the new ball-bearing political machine does the business just as the promoters of the primary law planned years ago.

Much is being said these days about the next governor, and the notion seems to prevail, that the right kind of a man in the executive chair would soon straighten out all the ills from which we are suffering.

While a governor bent on reforming the reformers, might accomplish something, the one important thing for the state is a legislature, committed to this kind of work, and it is up to us, the taxpayers, to see to it that this class of men are nominated and elected, in spite of boss and political domination.

No man should be permitted to have a seat in the next legislature, who is not pledged to work for the interests of the people in the repeal of a lot of obnoxious laws, and for vigorous reforms along the line of economy.

These kind of men can be nominated in spite of the handicap of the primary law, if the taxpayers organize in every community for self-protection, and this ought to be done. Cut out the politics and make this the one and only issue. Shall we tackle it in Janesville and Rock county?

CATTLE HIGH AT FARM SALES.

Writing to the Valley Farmer, a Kansas farmer says: The writer has been attending sales of farm property for the last thirty years or more. In that length of time he has seen cattle sell for rather high prices but the prices paid so far this fall have been higher than any he can recollect in the thirty years. Some years ago when a cow brought $25 it was thought she sold well. Now such a cow will bring $75 as quickly as she brought $25 in former years. It doesn't take much ready for the feed yard may bring as much as $85. Spring calves, if of good stock and of good weight, bring $30 each. These are good prices. Will cattle bought at such prices make the buyer a profit? We shall know more about that by this time next year.

High prices for cattle seems to prevail throughout the country and people who are trying to solve the high cost of living are constantly confronted with the price of beef on the hoof.

There will be no relief from these conditions until the supply exceeds the demand. This can only be brought about by increasing production, or by eating less meat. Production is not likely to increase very rapidly, and the American people will continue to eat meat freely as long as the money holds out.

The price of meat can not be fixed by law, any more than the price of eggs or any other perishable commodity. The packers are not responsible for high prices, and the farmer can not be expected to sell below the market. Better high priced meat and good times, than ten cent bacon and nothing to do.

JOHN J. HARVEY.

By the death of John J. Harvey, for many years manager of the Free Press Publishing company of Milwaukee, the newspaper world loses one of its trust and most honorable members. Mr. Harvey was a man whose friends were counted by the score and all who have come in personal contact with him, have felt his personal magnetism, regret his death. To his fellow workers on the Milwaukee Free Press, the blow is particularly keen; to the press at large his demise will be regretted. It is a personal loss to the state at large to lose such a character from its midst and sincere sympathy is extended to those who are left to mourn his death.

ECONOMY ISSUE.

It takes a little publisher in Fennimore to hit the nail on the head and sound the proper slogan for the coming political campaign. Partisan politics should be lost sight of and the question of economy in the administration of state affairs should be the one and only important issue at stake. While Mr. Roethel will not probably land the gubernatorial nomination, he has blazed the trail for others to follow and it is to be hoped that possible candidates will see the handwriting on the wall before it is too late.

The editor of the Madison State Journal, a graduate of the Collier school of journalism, is responsible for the statement that the per capita state tax is as low this year as at any time during the past twenty years, or words to that effect. That ought to help some. Bear it in mind when you pay your taxes, and by practicing a little Christian Science the tax bill may seem like a delusion and melt away in thin air.

The copper mine strike seems no nearer a solution than it did before the frightful catastrophe on Christmas eve. Too much outside interference seems to be the disturbing element. The Western Federation of Miners had bad reputation as fighters, and it is to be regretted that they are mixed up in the copper strike.

Al. Jennings, the notorious outlaw, whose history was recently exploited by the Saturday Evening Post, is now a candidate for governor of Oklahoma. While Jennings is entitled to help and sympathy, in his efforts to reform, the people of his state can afford to think twice before elevating him to high office.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of holding a fair in Janesville this coming summer and the Commercial club directors have endorsed the idea. As soon as the Twenty-five Thousand club holds a meeting they will doubtless do likewise and the matter ought to go ahead with a rush.

The Chicago school board is likely to be busy for some time defending its members against a speculative land deal. In the meantime Ella Flagg Young, the much maligned superintendent, may get a rest.

Apparently the question of rebuilding the structures destroyed by fire on the Milwaukee street bridge has not been settled in the minds of many and something may be expected shortly.

Harry K. Thaw must be nearing the end of his role. He has been declared sane and harmless by a court commissioner in New Hampshire.

On the Spur of the Moment

What They Say.

If a feller talks a lot, everybody says he's gabby.

That he's rattle-brained and should be placed upon the dunce's stool.

If he doesn't say a word, everybody says he's crutchy.

Or that he is very ignorant or is, in fact, a fool.

If he spends his hard-earned dough, everybody says he's dippy.

That he really should be saving for some distant rainy day.

If a feller tries to save, everybody says he's stingy.

And they greet him with a scornful scowl and pass upon their way.

If a feller stays at home, everybody says he's henecked:

That he's a mollycoddle with no soul to call his own.

If a feller stays out nights, everybody says he's sporty.

That his wife had ought to quit him and let him go on alone.

If a feller does his best, all the gossips jump upon him.

And they criticize him, too, if he tries to walk the chalks.

Bout the only thing to do, is to do just what you want to;

Just be natural and then let the doggone critters talk.

According to Uncle Abner.

The people who need religion are: The man who left his horse outside the cold day without a blanket on the man who grows like a wild beast when his wife asks him for money; the woman who is not what she ought to be; the minister who is looking for another place and a higher salary; the man who walks the streets with his hands in his pockets while his wife carries the baby; the man who keeps a dog and can't afford to take the home paper.

When a man complains about the high cost of living go at him as follows. "Your dad used to drive a yoke of steers and linkin' wagon; you drive a pair of roadsters hitched to a top buggy; your son drives a six-cylinder forty-horsepower automobile; the steers ate talo grass and made three miles an hour; the roadsters ate 15-cent corn and 85-prairie hay and made nine miles an hour; the motor eats 20-cent gasoline and makes seven-and-a-half miles an hour. More speed costs more money."

Things to Think About.

The best way to make a balloon light is to touch a match to it.

In one month a single caterpillar devours six thousand times its own weight in food. A married caterpillar probably devours much more.

In the north a small country bounded on the south by revolutionists, on the east by reconquered, on the west by ex-presidents and on the west by mosquitos.

The barbers haven't made a cent of John D. Rockefeller in nineteen years. His hair can't grow and his whiskers won't.

Old-Fashioned.
The old-fashioned girl was a peach was a gem; She could sew, she could knit, could embroider and hem. She could turn out fine biscuits as light as snow. And her corned beef and cabbage were classics, you know. She could help wash the dishes and set things aright. She could make her own waists and her skirts and all that. She could take a few fixins' and make her hat. She could look trim and neat with her hair in a curl. There was surely some class to the old-fashioned girl.

A Few Suggestions.

To Movie Managers—Couldn't you show a wild west picture once in a while?

To Cartoonists—Wouldn't it be a good idea to draw a picture of Huerta holding a dripping dagger?

To Street Car Company—Why wouldn't it be a good idea to have your conductors bawl: "Move forward in the aisle?"

To Auto Manufacturers—Wouldn't it be an excellent idea to advertise your car as the best in the world?

Heart to Heart Talks

KEEP MOVING.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift nor lie at anchor.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

That's the great thing—to keep moving.

Motion is life; immobility is death. Moreover, to permit the body or the mind to remain motionless for even a short time is to invite deterioration and decay. Even in sleep the body is not completely at rest, for the vital processes of respiration, digestion, etc., go on.

What is true of the microcosm of the body is true also of the macrocosm of the world, for the mass of men repeat in many cases the processes which animate the individual.

The world, like the man, must keep moving if life is to continue. It cannot rest. It must go on and on, to fulfill its destiny. We hope and trust and believe that the destiny both of man as an individual and of man in total, will and must be good.

It does not rest in the power of man, perhaps, to put hand on the helm of the world, on the ship of all mankind and direct it safely, surely and steadily to its ultimate port.

But each man may steer his own ship.

Surely use! Parisian Sage. It is a scientific preparation, based on a thorough knowledge of what is needed to cleanse the scalp and hair, keeping them perfectly healthy, stop scalp itch and falling hair, and make hair grow.

Get a 50 cent bottle from Smith Drug Co. today—pour a little on a sponge or cloth and rub lightly over the hair, taking a small strand at a time—rub it into the scalp. Presto! the dandruff surely disappears; the hair is free from dust excessive and oil and is doubly beautiful. Try it now—it will not only save your hair and make it soft, fluffy and abundant, but give it that incomparable gloss and beauty you desire.

Let the binnacle light of your conscience so shine on your compass that you will be able to hold the wheel true in all stress of weather.

The ship which drifts aimlessly about on the face of the waters, without guidance, is called a derelict. It is significant of the justice of the figure of the speech comparing man and his journey through life to ship to shore and her voyage that a human being drifting without direction is called a human derelict."

Resolute to be on the ocean of life a great, strong, proud liner, fearlessly pushing its way through storm and sunshine and making splendid voyages, rather than a storm beaten, helpless, drifting derelict.

And they greet him with a scornful scowl and pass upon their way.

CLARIOS ENCOURAGE NATION PROHIBITION

Representatives from State Association Draw Small Crowds at Meetings Today.

The Clariots, singers, lecturers and impersonators from the state of Wisconsin Prohibition association and members of the nation Prohibition party, have been running strong at present for the 1916 election presidential campaign, arousing small but enthusiastic crowds at the city hall today, in two meetings, morning and afternoon.

In addressing the people this afternoon Merritt A. Stipp said: "The United States body as it stands to day has 243,000 young men and boys, and we must have secured the habit of drinking." Also, there are 6,000 carbuncles or breweries not to say anything of the 10,000 blind drug store measles, as they call them, which at present are holding the attention of many an anxious whiskey buyer.

"The United States needs constitutional treatment, and at once. We must and are going to get together and make a political party and wipe out the curse, which for fifty years has been increasing tremendously. We are going to Washington" to the American issue, of the liquor traffic."

HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN TO BE LAUNCHED AT BIG MASS MEETING

WEDNESDAY EVENING WILL MARK OPENING OF GUNS OF RACE FOR FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

DISCUSS THOROUGHLY

At Meeting of Twenty Representative Business and Professional Men This Noon.

Wednesday evening at eight o'clock the citizens of Janesville are asked to attend a mass meeting at which plans for the raising of $40,000 to pay off the indebtedness of the Palmer Memorial Hospital will be made, at the City Hall. This was the result of the meeting this noon of twenty prominent business and professional men who thoroughly discussed the proposition on all sides and decided it was a good opportunity to raise the funds needed.

The meeting Wednesday evening will give the public an idea of what is to be accomplished within the next two weeks. Committees will be named and preliminary work done which will prepare for the big campaign which starts at six-thirty on Monday, January 19th, following a banquet at Assembly Hall at which two hundred and fifty are expected to be present.

The meeting this noon was held in the ordinary of the Myres Hotel and the discussion was on the subject of the race for forty thousand dollars.

Mr. W. S. Jeffris, of Milwaukee, was a most enthusiastic meeting and the gentlemen present freely expressed their views on the question.

Preliminary talks were given by all of the men present. W. S. Jeffris spoke of the praiseworthy efforts of the sisters to establish a hospital here that would adequately take care of the needs of not only the citizens of this city but also inhabitants of the country surrounding. He also commented on the absolute lack of discrimination between parties of various denominations in the care received at the hospital. He voiced his sentiments as being hearty in favor of carrying on a campaign to aid in lifting the debt.

H. L. McNamee spoke of the days when the new hospital was erected and how at times the patients were obliged to occupy beds in the office or in the halls due to the lack of facilities in the original building. He stated that in his opinion the work of the sisters was worthy of a great deal of consideration and that they should be aided in every way that was in the power of the citizens to further assist them in furthering their good work.

G. S. Parker seconded the words of the former speakers and added that in his opinion the hospital was being operated in an efficient manner, which is a credit to the city. The support of every energetic citizen should be given this movement.

G. S. Sutherland, chairman of the meeting, suggested that a hospital under the control and operation of the Sisters of Mercy could be run at a much less cost to a municipality than one owned and operated by the city itself. This fact is born out by the experiences of several cities within the radius of a few miles of our own.

T. O. Howe in his remarks, suggested that it be well for the business men to appoint a board of trustees to aid the sisters in making expenditures of moneys and in making necessary improvements. He thought that the original committee who took up subscriptions for the hospital should have followed the work through and give the sisters the advice which he felt the sisters would welcome.

He read a short passage from a communication written by W. H. Dougherty, stating that the sisters would be more than glad to have such a board as the actual work of conducting the hospital made it hard to look after the work of making financial expenditures.

Upon a motion of A. P. Lovejoy such a committee was elected as follows:

T. O. Howe chairman, Michael Hayes, A. P. Lovejoy, S. B. Hedges, and Dean Reilly.

H. H. Bliss then gave a few remarks in which he stated that he believed that it was a well known fact that the sisters were the best managers of hospitals, and that even in the great hospital of the Mayo Brothers at Rochester, Minn., the sisters were in charge.

Cards were then suggested and approved of the following consenting to act: Geo. Sutherland chairman, M. Hayes, S. Smith, W. Dougherty, D. Ryan, F. Crook, D. Hayes, V. Weber, S. Hedges, Geo. King, Al. Schaller, J. J. Dulin, Otto Schicker, H. H. Bliss, A. P. Lovejoy, G. S. Parker, T. O. Howe, and T. E. Welch. W. S. Jeffris stated that in event of their finding it impossible to act in the capacity of captain they would make provision for someone to act in their place.

LEUCH ENTERS RING AGAINST STAFFORD

Milwaukee City Clerk Lays Out Strenuous Campaign In Race For Seat In Congress.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Jan. 13.—With the anti-primary campaign in full swing, City Clerk Peter Leuch has sent the congressional ball rolling with his announcement last week that he will enter the lists against Congressman William H. Stafford for the non-partisan nomination from the Fifteenth Wisconsin district.

It is conceded by politicians that Leuch has laid out a strenuous fight for himself. Mr. Stafford, the present incumbent, it is believed, will make a strong fight for re-election, and should Leuch win he will have former Congressman Victor Berger to combat.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHY DO WE DO IT?

FOR ALL the unreasonable things we unreasonable human beings do it seems to me that blaming people for actions which in themselves were perfectly guiltless, but which happen to cause us discomfort, is one of the worst.

The other day when I was trying to transact some important business over the telephone someone from above stairs, who did not know I was talking over the 'phone, began calling to me. Not anyone who has ever used a telephone, knows how annoying and confusing it is to have someone interrupt in my case was that the important business was very much muddled. Needless to say I left the telephone in a state of great annoyance and at once went upstairs to scold the interrupter.

And being a person with a very bad temper, it wasn't until after I had freed my mind and cooled down that I realized how unreasonable I had been. She didn't know that I was listening at the telephone, and to call down to me when I was not at the phone was perfectly reasonable. I had suffered a good deal of inconvenience, but it was only through a mistake, not any deliberate offense. And so after all, it was I who deserved the scolding instead of her.

Of course you don't fix off the handle as badly as that because you're not as disturbed but, dear reader friend, don't you sometimes make a mistake of blaming people for actions which in themselves were perfectly guiltless but which happened to cause you discomfort or inconvenience?

Especially in dealing with children, it seems to me, we make this mistake of letting the trouble an act of theirs causes us and not the culpability of the act itself, be the criterion of the blame they shall receive.

I have seen a child put to bed for tipping over a plant with one of those quick, impulsive motions, for which children are hardly to be blamed at all; and merely reproved for a serious exhibition of selfishness. I have no love for children, but I do not feel that such a ferment of indignation in my heart as when I was punished for acts which I had committed with no intent of wrong. I shall never forget being sent to bed by an aunt whom I was visiting because I tore my dress in an attempt to do something which I really thought would please her. She lived in the country and kept hens. I had had no previous experience with these creatures, and was deeply interested in them and especially in the urgent desire on the part of my aunt and uncle for more eggs. I realized that the hens laid when they sat on the nest, and so one day I took a hen which I thought had not been doing her duty, wriggled it behind the nest and firmly held her on for some moments.

The punishment I received for the torn dress which was the only result of my unselfish labor, still rankles. I knew that I had meant to help, and to be punished for my mistake was almost more than I could bear.

Of course it takes a great deal of patience to be just when you are annoyed or inconvenienced; and we human creatures cannot always accomplish the feat. But surely to be just under such circumstances is an ideal well worth striving for.

CHEESE IS BEST SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT; SERVED IN MANY WAYS.

Every housekeeper should know something of the nutritive value of cheese and the many ways of preparing it into delicious dishes for the table.

As there are more than 200 varieties of cheese, it can hardly take up all in this article, but will have to hold closely to the American cheese for our cooking dishes, which is the cheddar type, but a softer, milder flavored cheese than that desired by our neighbors across the ocean.

Cheese Souffle. Materials—Grated cheese, one-half cup; milk, one-half cup; flour, three tablespoons; butter, two tablespoons; eggs, three; salt, cayenne and paprika.

Directions—Melt the butter in a sauce pan and add the flour, stirring until well blended; then pour on gradually the milk and stir until it boils, then add the cheese, salt and other seasoning. As soon as the cheese is melted remove from the fire and add the well beaten yolks and the stiffly beaten whites. Mix carefully together and turn into a moderate oven twenty-five minutes. Pass with a vegetable salad.

Cheese Slices. Roll plain or puff pastry into long strips one-fourth of an inch thick. Sprinkle with any kind of grated cheese and add salt and paprika. Put another strip on top of this and press the edges together very tightly. Sprinkle the top with cheese and bake a delicate brown. Serve with fruit salad.

Cheese Balls. Materials—Grated cheese, one and one-half cups; flour, one tablespoonful; salt, one-quarter teaspoonful; cayenne; whites of eggs, three.

Directions—Mix cheese, flour, salt and a few grains of cayenne all together, then add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Shape in small balls about the size of ordinary sized marbles, roll in cracker dust, and fry in deep vegetable fat. Drain on soft paper. (paper toweling is fine for this) and serve with salads.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Six years ago I met a man ten years my senior and we kept company about four months. All of that time I thought he was getting a sober man, but he turned out to be a awful drunk.

I hope the girls who read these Heart and Home Problems will think about this poor wife's fate and be more careful to look into a man's character and habits before they marry him. A man's months' acquaintance is hardly enough.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am sixteen years old and have been keeping company with a young man of eighteen. His folks greatly object to our going with each other, some, then my husband sold his and spent the money for drink.

When I go to town the people look at me and laugh right in my face. Of course I do not have any good dresses, nor hat. I did washing for some of the neighbors last summer and earned about $15. He took the last dollar for drink.

We haven't a sign of a carpet. I do all the scrubbing—seven rooms—and keep the home clean. We have no children, thank God for that, but we have no shoes and if I say I need have no shoes and if I say I need them he will say "Can't you wait?" if I say the floor is all gone, he will say "Is that gone already?" It makes me feel bad, I am just as saving as I can be.

I thought I would leave him. I could keep myself fine on $6 a week, but he won't let me have any money. I am so blue and down-hearted I can hardly write.

I am alone all day long; he is not much company when he is home. He is so drunk he does not know "Home Sweet Home" from "The Wearin' of the Green" when it is played.

Can you give me some advice that will cheer me up. B. M.

If you love this man, in spite of his being a drunkard and so inconsiderate of you, you will stick to him no matter what I say. I think you intend to stick to him, anyway. If you want to leave him, you can go to town and get work as a domestic and have a home and earn a little money that way. It would make you independent of him, and you could folks? Is it right for me to go with him? I have been writing to a boy friend in a different town. He is a cousin of my sister's best. Is it right for me to invite him down to see me?

(3) Is it right for me to write to him and go with the other one?

CURRY HAIR. (1) If his parents object you had better let him go. Anyway, you are both too young to consider yourselves seriously in love. Girls and boys of your ages are only playing with love, my dear.

(2) You might say to him that if he comes to your town you would be glad to have him drop in and pay you a visit. But you cannot invite him to come and stay at your house.

(3) You are not engaged to either one, so I see no objection to having both of them for friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please give me a remedy to take nits out of hair? N. D. T. YES.

With equal parts of kerosene and olive oil. Rub this well into the scalp and hair at night. Cover the head with a tightly wrapped piece of muslin. Next morning wash head with soap, hot water and vinegar. Use a fine-toothed comb, dipped in vinegar, to clean out hair. Repeat this process three times. It will free the head of lice and nits.

CHICKENS LIVERS WITH BACON.

Clean the livers and cut each liver into six pieces. Wrap a thin slice of bacon around each piece and fasten with a small skewer. Put in a broiler place over a dripping pan and bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp, turning once during the cooking.

TOMATO CREAM SAUCE.

One-half can of tomatoes, one slice of onion, one stalk of celery, one slice of onion, one bay leaf, one cup of white sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, few grains cayenne, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper, one cup of hot milk. Melt the butter, add the flour and seasonings and gradually the hot milk. Cut the eggs in eighths lengthwise and reheat in sauce.

MOLASSES POUND CAKE.

Two-thirds cup of butter, three-quarters cup of sugar, two eggs, two-thirds cup of milk, two-thirds cup of molasses, two and one-eighth cups of flour, three-quarters teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of allspice, one-quarter teaspoonful of cloves, one-half cup of raisins, seeded and cut in eighths, one-half cup of citron, thinly sliced and cut in strips. Cream the butter and add the flour gradually, eggs well beaten, and milk and molasses. Mix and sift the flour with the soda and spices, and add to the first mixture, then add the fruit. Bake in small buttered tins from twenty-five to thirty minutes in a moderate oven. This will make twenty-four little cakes.

CLOVES ON TOAST.

Chop a dozen carrots and boil them five minutes in their liquor; drain and add to them two-tablespoonfuls of fine crumb, a tablespoonful of butter, salt and pepper to taste and a gill of milk in which a heating teaspoonful of cornstarch has been dissolved. Stir constantly over the fire until the mixture boils, then add a gill of cream; stir for a moment longer and pour upon the toast.

GERMAN POTATO PANCAKES.

Six large raw potatoes grated fine; three eggs; a scant teaspoonful of soda; salt to taste. Mix as pancake dough and fry in plenty of fat previously heated gradually to a boil.

There are many people who balk at the thought of eating left-over food. Their idea of hash is the limit of their culinary knowledge on the subject. Now, hash is a homely old dish of our grandmothers', and is not to be despised. There is hash and hash "out of daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life."

—Lord Houghton.

The careless, improvident person is wasteful of small bits of food and vegetables, which, if carefully combined, make attractive dishes.

Even a dish for one is better saved than wasted. In one family where nothing is wasted and there are small dishes of food left, they are combined in tasty small dishes and placed on a tray where each member of the family may choose which he likes best, or they may take turns in having the first choice. Even a stalk of celery with an apple and a few pieces of nuts and a tablespoonful of salad dressing will make a nice dish of salad for one.

A tablespoonful of chicken in a dish of rice will flavor the whole dish and make a pleasant change.

The coarser stalks of celery, which are not nice enough to use on the table, may be cooked until tender and served in a white sauce on toast or used as a flavor for soup stock.

Knowing how to utilize left-overs is science in itself, and will help out many a housewife when unexpected company arrives. Left-over mashed potato may be made into potato puffs or croquettes, or simply saute in a little butter after making them into flat cakes. A delicious cream of potato soup may be prepared with a cupful of mashed potato. Boiled potatoes may be hashed brown or creamed.

Every bone left from the steaks or other cuts of meat may be utilized in soup stock. Sauces and many dishes are so much better flavored if made from stock, rather than water.

A most appetizing dish may be made of a little left-over steak. Cut it in bits to serve, and place it with a layer of potatoes sprinkled with onion and a little stock in a casserole. Cover with tomatoes and bake until the potatoes are tender. Season every layer before adding the tomatoes. Chicken or any kind of meat may be served this way, and the addition of a few peas sprinkled over the top makes a most tasty and also pretty dish.

A bit of chicken combined with cold boiled potato, an apple or two, a little celery and salad dressing makes a most appetizing salad.

ECZEMA COVERED ENTIRE SCALP

Spread to Body, Limbs, Back and Ears. If Scratched Would Bleed and Smart. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Completely Cured.

R. F. D. No. 2, Sunfield, Mich.—"I was troubled with eczema. It began with a sore on the top of the scalp, broke out as a pimple and grew larger until it was a large red spot with crust or scab over it. This became larger finally covering the entire scalp and spread to different parts of the body, the limbs and back and in the ears. These sores grew larger gradually until some were as large as a quarter of a dollar.

They would itch and if scratched they would bleed and smart. The clothing would irritate them at night when it was being removed causing them to itch and smart so I could not sleep. A watery fluid would run from them. My scalp became covered with a scale and when the hair was raised up it would raise this scale; the hair was coming out terribly. My scalp and body itched all the time.

"After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment with two applications we could notice a great difference. My way of using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment was to apply the Ointment to the sores and all over the scalp, then after I would wash the sores and scalp with the Soap. In a month's time I was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Bertha Underwood Jan. 3, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25¢ and Cuticura Ointment 10¢ are sold everywhere. Liberal samples of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

"Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it beat for skin and scalp."

RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN THIS COMMUNITY

Former Resident Writes Letter to Gazette From His Home in Peoria, Illinois.

C. C. Olin of Peoria, Illinois, a former resident of Janesville, writes an interesting letter to the Gazette on the olden days when he was a citizen of Wisconsin. The letter will be read with interest by many who recall Mr. Olin when he lived in Janesville. The following is the letter:

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 11, 1914:
Janesville Gazette,
Janesville, Wis.

Gentlemen—it has been some time since you heard from me, I know.

But I have not forgotten my old home and haunts, dear old Janesville and Rock county.

I often think and go back in my mind to the days of the sixties when the call for men to arms in defense of our liberties used to sound from pulpit and press and was heralded through the railroads districts by recruiting agents. Well, do you remember when Bartow's cavalry was quartered on the fair grounds which was at that time south of the city. My father, my brother and myself went up to Janesville to see the soldiers. We saw them on dress parade and a grand sight it was to us two boys just in our teens as you may say. Those were times that tried men's souls and loyalty. O, what days of excitement and trials. Well do I remember every time a young man would enlist how he was heralded abroad as a heroism and loudly extolled for miles around. Here are some of the names of a certain few who, being acquaintances and neighbors and schoolmates, made deeper and more lasting impression on my mind, an impression I never will forget. Their names are as follows: Chas. Culver, John Haggart, Frank Allen, Dan Shimane, John Weirick, Alonzo Truesdale, John Truesdale, Melvin Allyn, Charley Marsh, Lydia Sweet, John Cole, Wm. Thurber. The majority of these joined the ranks of the silent city. But their memory remains fresh in the minds of any of the old settlers who yet live to commemorate those trying days. As our mind slips back over those events we are called to recollections of other events of a far different nature. The settlement of that wide expanse of prairie between Janesville and Beloit, the dangers and vicissitudes which accompanied the early settlers, some of whom will relate some of which will be brought fresh to your memory: The Maberry murder case, and the numerous murders and robberies of that notorious gang called the bandits of the prairies; the Schilling murder case; the Gower case; the Mack murder case; the Lambert murder; the murder of an unidentified man in Big Hollow on the Beloit road or Old Telegraph road. Rock county has surely seen her share of murder. Another case of spurious money, "cottage at the mouth of the range of Tawauh" their many assistants near Brodhead, but in Rock county east of Brodhead. When we look and think of the happenings in days of foot and team travel we almost wonder how it was I came out all right, as I used to watch or herd cattle on that wild prairie. The settlers used to turn their stock out together and some boys of the vicinity would take turns herding them; sometimes on horseback and sometimes on foot. I don't know of any of those youngsters who are left to relate anything concerning these things unless it is some of the Mincks, Van Galdens or Gowers.

Those were surely wild days in old Rock county. The prairie wolf roamed at will over those prairies which now are thickly populated. It is a pleasure to ponder over the past and bring back some of the more striking incidents of the same. I hope some time to come up there and view the old scenes again, and may you.

Now Mr. Editor—if this is any use to your valuable paper which I used to read many, many years ago you are welcome to it, and whenever I can get a little time I am willing to tell more of the early history of old Rock.

I am now in the employ of the Peoria Journal, and expect to remain with them.

Yours very respectfully,

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Milton Junction, Wis., Jan. 8, 1914.
To the Editors:

Knowing you have a great many democratic readers, I would like to call their attention to an answer made to a Milwaukee reporter by John A. Ayward. When the reporter asked Mr. Ayward what about Oscar Deacon's Jeffersonian government, Ayward replied: "I had as yet no vote for Judge Karel," a statement which to my mind, knowing how he fought Judge Karel's nomination and then tried but failed to foil his platform upon the judges at the Madison convention, is an admission that he, to say the least, didn't use his best endeavors to further the success of the democratic state ticket in 1912. Mr. Roessler comes under the ban of his disfession because at the beginning of his legislative session, when Mr. Ayward tried to engineer a split in the democratic representative, calling some progressives, and others Tories, with Mr. Knuen, his progressive candidate, for the honor of the democratic vote for speaker (by the way I see Mr. Knuen is selected for a federal plum as his reward).—Mr. Roessler stepped in, as a plain democrat, and smashed Mr. Ayward's slate, receiving 26 to Knuen's 11.

The 35 democratic votes in the caucus, however, gave the house to Mr. Ayward.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I boasted till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine."

"I hope other suffering women will try your compound. I will recommend it to all know." —Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that, if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

Cheap and Easily Made, But Ends a Cough Quickly

How to Make the Very Best Cough Remedy at Home. Fully Guaranteed.

This pint of cough syrup is easily made at home and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It relieves obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—quickly, and is splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, spasmodic cough and hoarseness.

Take one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of water, boil and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tasted good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in mineral oil and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this mixture, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy. This plan has often been imitated, but the old success has never been equaled.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Broadway Jones

From the Play of George M. Cohan

By EDWARD MARSHALL

With Photographs from Scenes in the Play
Copyright, 1913, by C. W. Dillingham Company

Jackson Jones went away early on the following morning. As ignorant of business and of business methods as a baby, yet he tried to scheme some way by means of which he might recoup his staggering finances. Wild ideas, all unpractical, whirled through his brain.

He must have money, that was certain. He had not the least idea of just how he had accomplished it, but he had spent his patrimony—spent it all and more than all of it. If he had paid up the debts he owed—which all the world seemed glad to have him owe—that was the hard part of it; everyone seemed anxious to have him go in debt to them—he would have far less than nothing left.

For days he stewed above his figures in a room of which he kept close guard upon the key. He told Rankin, who was curious, that he planned to write a book.

"Indeed, sir? Fiction, sir?"
"Fiction? Gad, no! Fact."

"A book of travel, sir? I've traveled quite a bit. Perhaps—"

"No. Or yes. Of travel up and down Broadway."

"Splendid, sir, if I may be excused for taking such a liberty. I'm sure no gentleman in all New York is more familiar with the subject, sir. I shall be glad to read it, sir. I'm sure it will be quite a revelation!"

"Rankin," said Broadway earnestly, "if I wrote what I really know about Broadway it would be a revelation."

"I grew very serious, for him. It would put some men on pedestals, and they would not be those who now stand highest. It would put some men behind the bars, and among them are some men who now are free to come and go, with welcomes when they come and invitations when they leave, in every place where people gather in this town."

He burst into a sudden laugh. "Great stuff, eh, Rankin? When you say Broadway you stir me up. I love it, hate it; it always fascinates me. There's no street like it in the world."

"If your book is like that, sir, it will be a big success," commented Rankin, spellbound. "It's going to be a fine book, Mr. Jones."

"It won't interest Broadway. There's only one kind of book that Broadway cares about."

"And what is that, sir?"
"Check books, Rankin. Now I'm going into—into—" He did not know just what to call the room which he kept locked.

"Your study, sir?"
"Thanks, Rankin. Yes, I'm disturbed to my study. Don't let me be disturbed."

"I'll not, sir."

When he left that "study" he avoided Rankin. His fingers were ink-stained from calculations, his hair was quite disheveled, his eyes were wide and rolling. He could see no hope ahead.

He wrote a letter to his uncle explaining that investments had gone wrong and that he needed a small loan of fifty thousand dollars for three months. He was sure that if he got this he would be enabled to find some way out. By return of mail he had an answer in an envelope which strangely bulged. He opened it with trembling fingers and a package of Jones' Peppermint Gum fell out.

"Chew this and forget it," said the cheerful note which Uncle Abner had wrapped round it. "It said further: 'I'm going to Europe for five years. Don't bother me again. You've made you bed, now lie on it.'

That was the last straw. Without the least idea of what he wished to do, the frantic Broadway started out to find some work by which, at least, he could earn honestly his board and keep.

Wall street offered nothing, for when he went down to see his friends there, his courage failed entirely and instead of asking them to find a place for him he bought them, one by one, expensive luncheons.

He went to neighboring cities, hoping there to find some means of getting food to eat without getting it on credit, and there he had some strange experiences which lasted several days. But, while he just escaped the uniform of the Salvation Army, he did not find work and wandered back to Broadway, the apartment and more debt.

He had no profession, knew no trade. Half crazed with the obsession that he must no longer run in debt, he decided to sell out the flat, discharge the servants and do menial labor. Running through the list of his abilities he decided, with frank self-contempt, that about the best which he could do was help in a hotel as bellboy. He knew too little about mathematics to keep books; he never would succeed as desk-clerk. But he could not bring himself to try to get a job of that sort—it would too often bring him into contact with the folk he knew.

One afternoon, while wandering in an aimless funk upon a side street, he saw a card in front of an apartment house announcing that an elevator boy placed it very carefully.

As he whirled up into the run about he frequently felt of the deadly things.

He liked the feel of neither of them. The revolver was so hard and business-like, the pill bottle was so slippery, so cold and heartless! What an end was this for Broadway Jones!

Again seated in the little study, he solemnly reviewed his life. He saw no points at which he had made very great mistakes, save the important one of thinking that a quarter of a million is a lot of money in New York.

"I've been nothing but a piker," he reflected, "and I've acted like the trade-marked article. I ought to get it in the neck and I am going to get it in the neck."

This unpleasantly reminded him and he caressed the neck wherein he was to get it. Never, in the past, when he had used that slang expression had it really suggested his own neck to him or any other actual neck. Now it made his flesh creep and his blood run cold behind his collar.

"Well, here goes!" he whispered and took out a pill, afterwards arranging the revolver, which was already loaded.

He held the pill between the fingers of a tremulous left hand; gripped it in his faltering right he held the weapon.

"Here goes!" he said again—and Rankin rapped upon the door.

Hastily he hid the dreadful evidences of his dire intention.

"Come in!" he feebly called.

Rankin brought him a pink envelope upon a little silver tray. Rankin was most careful to bring everything upon a tray. Broadway steadfastly maintained that if a drowning man asked Rankin to bring help he would first go to get a tray to take it to him on.

The pink envelope was marked with an elaborate monogram, of which the dominant letter was a "G." It was from her whom he had left so short a time before. Mrs. Gerard, by means of it, implored him to become a member of a theater, and supper party for that evening. The note almost was affectionate.

The theater and supper parties were to both occur in Broadway! Ah, Broadway! It would be hard to leave it by the chilly by-path, death which leads out of the light into the shadows!

It occurred to Broadway Jones that he might decently accept this invitation, even if the crowd which she would have would probably be not quite to his liking. Ah, there were crowds upon the thoroughfare he loved which were so full to his liking!

And then another plan flashed into his mind. Why not give a farewell supper? No one but himself would know it was a farewell supper—all the rest would think it just the best affair of many fine affairs which Broadway Jones had given. The restaurant was wanted. He rushed in with alacrity and determination—and at the very threshold met Mrs. Gerard, who had been calling on a friend there. Instead of asking for the job he took a drive with her.

It was while this drive progressed that the sordid, vicious temper definitely seized him in his toils. The ancient but vivacious dame was very affable—most agreeable indeed. She was not motherly; she was flirtatious. And she accompanied her coquetry by a shrewd exposition of the magnitude of her unquestionably enormous wealth. It staggered him.

If he had not at the moment had a simple little Josie Richards' letter in his pocket he might have been swept under. A thousand times he had discovered the necessity of assuring himself, as he traveled up and down Broadway, that he did not care for Josie Richards. She was not the sort of girl who captivated one who knew her well. She was dear, but she was simple, unsophisticated and what he most admired was wide sophistication; he thought as little of her as he could, but now she popped into his mind and made him edge away from the aged, wealthy widow.

When he went back to the flat he found awaiting him new sheets of bills, none pressing him—mere statements. The rumor had not started that he was not good pay. Broadway still delighted in him, still endeavored to induce him to accept its credit. This gave him new distress; he knew him self—he knew he would go out that night and run more debts.

Suddenly he knew what to do. It came to him without an effort of the brain. It was a tragic inspiration.

Without a word to Rankin, and secretly, he went forth into the afternoon in his smart runabout, still driven by the taxi-cabman, who now regarded him with something akin to worship, and sought a gunshop and a chemist's.

Wall street offered nothing, for when he went down to see his friends there, his courage failed entirely and instead of asking them to find a place for him he bought them, one by one, expensive

When the Children Cough Use MUSTEROLE!

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into a cough. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of MUSTEROLE at hand to give prompt, sure relief. If positively does not blister the tender skin.

As first aid and a certain remedy there's nothing like MUSTEROLE. Thousands of mothers keep it on hand. You should keep a jar in the house.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tuberwhich gave it would be paid undoubtedly out of the residue of his estate, and if there wasn't any residue the restaurant could well afford to lose. It had many thousands of his money.

He would make this dinner—no, it would be better to make it a supper—the finest little supper which had yet electrified Broadway. It should sparkle, it should fizz, it should re-sound with joyful chords and merry laughter; in short that supper should achieve the limit and surpass it. Then would he be more content to go.

He locked the poison and the firearm carefully in desk drawer. He called Rankin, and, to that stalwart's great delight, made out the list of invitations to the wildest supper he had ever planned; he telephoned to his good friend, the restaurateur. Returning to the study he took the poison and the pistol from the drawer and put them in another. The second drawer had two locks, while the first drawer had but one. He refused again to think about them until after he had given the extra supper.

"Why, John, said his mother, coming into the room just as the boy was putting cotton in one of his ears, 'what are you doing that?'

"Cause," answered John, "you told me that what goes in one of my ears goes out of the other, and I want to keep what the teacher said today in my head."

"Have you toothache, dear?" asked grandma, patting Lulu's tiddy cheek.

"It was mine. I'd have it pulled out and make an end of it."

"Is it mine yours?" Well, grandma, so would I."

Good Rule for Right Living.

Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality—they are the perfect duties.

If your morals make you dreary, depend upon it they are wrong.

I do not say "give them up," for they may be all you have;

but conceal them, like a vice, lest they should spoil the lives of better men.

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Check the Symptoms of Lung Trouble

One of the many reasons why Lung Trouble is so difficult to fight is because the disease is often of a very flattering nature. The patient may look well, but in reality is just as bad as ever. Continued night sweats, fever and cough. These symptoms should be checked as quickly as possible: Eckman's Alternative is designed in checking fever, reducing night sweats, and lost rapidly in weight and strength. Ask your doctor to try it. It is a complete recovery. Read this case:

305 W. 30th St., New York.

Gentlemen: I am writing you this afternoon to advise you that your Alternative is good for me. Since I was a very young woman I was suffering from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, but nothing helped. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight and my doctor told me they were not checked. I was having fits of Trembling, Trembling, Trembling. Eckman's Alternative is of infinite value. I recovered after taking his Alternative and insisted that I try it. I am now, after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy.

—MRS. ROSA VOELPE.
